Foreword: Singing in the Dark ix
   Guthrie P. Ramsey Jr.

Preface xi

Introduction: Representing Blackness on the Operatic Stage 1

1. From Otello to Porgy: Blackness, Masculinity, and Morality in Opera 11
   Naomi André

2. Hearing the Other in The Masque of Blackness 32
   Sarah Schmalenberger

3. Nationalism, Racial Difference, and “Egyptian” Meaning in Verdi’s Aida 55
   Christopher R. Gauthier and Jennifer McFarlane-Harris

4. Race, “Realism,” and Fate in Frederick Delius’s Koanga 78
   Eric Saylor

5. Political Currents and Black Culture in Scott Joplin’s Treemonisha 101
   Ann Sears

6. Clarence Cameron White’s Ouanga! in the World of the Harlem Renaissance 116
   Karen M. Bryan
7. New Paradigms in William Grant Still’s Blue Steel  141
   Gayle Murchison

8. Performers in Catfish Row: Porgy and Bess as Collaboration  164
   Gwynne Kuhner Brown

9. Searching for “Authenticity” in Paul Bowles’s Denmark Vesey  187
   Melissa J. de Graaf

10. The Politics of Color in Oscar Hammerstein’s Carmen Jones  212
    Melinda Boyd

11. Performing Race in Ernst Krenek’s Jonny spielt auf  236
    Jonathan O. Wipplinger

12. Il Rodolfo Nero, or The Masque of Blackness  260
    George Shirley

Contributors  275

Index  279