Studies in Sensory History will galvanize a burgeoning field of scholarship by publishing and promoting work on the history of the senses from ancient times to the twenty-first century throughout the world. Books in the series will examine the relevance of seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting, and touching to the principal developments of antiquity and the pre-Enlightenment era, and they will explore ways in which the senses interacted with and informed developments typically associated with “modernity”—class, race, and gender conventions; industrialization; urbanization; colonization; imperialism; and nationalism. The series will publish work on all regions—non-Western as well as Euro-American—and from all time periods. Methodologically, the series aims to publish works that deal not simply with the way people thought about the senses but also the full social and cultural contexts of those experiences.

Submissions should take the form of a 3-5 page proposal outlining the intent of the project, its scope, its relation to other work on the topic, and the audience(s) you have in mind. Please also include 2-3 sample chapters, if available, and a copy of your C.V.

Please direct all questions and submissions to:
Marika Christofides, Acquiring Editor, mchristo@illinois.edu,
University of Illinois Press, 1325 South Oak St., Champaign, IL 61820-6903

Now available in the series

From Gluttony to Enlightenment
The World of Taste in Early Modern Europe

Viktoria von Hoffmann

“Von Hoffmann’s study gives a comprehensive overview of writings on early modern taste from the standpoint of cuisine, medicine, religion, and philosophy. Rich and thoroughly researched.”

—Emma C. Spary, author of Eating the Enlightenment: Food and the Sciences in Paris, 1670–1780

282 pp. 6.125 x 9.25. 5 b & w photos. 2016. Hardcover 978-0-252-04064-1. $95.00; E-book

Taste of the Nation
The New Deal Search for America’s Food

Camille Bégin

“Who knew that modern food writing originated in the New Deal’s Federal Writers’ Project? Camille Bégin convincingly shows how the FWP’s sensory concerns linked food to race and place. Her lively account recognizes the importance of food writing.”

—Donna Gabaccia, author of We Are What We Eat: Ethnic Food and the Making of Americans

240 pp. 8 x 9. 13 b & w photos. 2016. Paperback 978-0-252-08170-5. $25.00; E-book

The Age of Noise in Britain
Hearing Modernity

James G. Mansell

“James Mansell’s remarkably clear, wonderfully detailed, even occasionally droll examination of the sensing self in industrial modernity makes a substantial, important contribution to historical sound studies and British studies.”

—John M. Picker, author of Victorian Soundscapes

City of Noise
Sound and Nineteenth-Century Paris

Aimée Boutin

“In an innovative effort to provide an auditory history of Paris, Boutin mined the works of 19th-century writers, poets, composers, and painters for descriptions of or images evoking the cris de Paris.”

—Choice

“Boutin convinces us both of the possibility and the value in probing the sounds of the city of light in the nineteenth century.”

—Nineteenth Century Contexts

208 pp. 6.125 x 9.25. 22 b & w photos, 2 music examples. 2015. Paperback 978-0-252-08078-4. $25.00; E-book
Past Scents
Historical Perspectives on Smell
JONATHAN REINARZ
“This book suggests that engagement with the cultural work of smell both in the past and in the present can be richly rewarding. Reinarz’s timely survey of historical perspectives on smell will (hopefully) inspire further research that will move us beyond simple binaries of fragrant/foul and self/other toward more redolent possibilities.”
—Journal of Interdisciplinary History
296 pp. 6 x 9. 13 b & w photos. 2014.
Paperback 978-0-252-07979-5. $27.00; E-book

Sonic Persuasion
Reading Sound in the Recorded Age
GREG GOODALE
“How to interpret identity, culture, and history in sound.

“An important book.”
—IEEE Technology and Society Magazine

“Goodale’s book helps us acquire a . . . much-needed sonic literacy.”
—Technology and Culture
Paperback 978-0-252-07795-1. $29.00; E-book

The Deepest Sense
A Cultural History of Touch
CONSTANCE CLASSEN
“Classen’s lush descriptions provide an excellent underscoring of her exploration of this intimate sense.”
—Library Journal

“Classen shows that the history of touch is itself reflexive: although they can be only be inferred from sources, these once palpable embraces tell the history of the very deepest connections between us.”
—American Historical Review
256 pp. 6 x 9. 8 b & w photos. 2012.
Paperback 978-0-252-07859-0. $27.00; E-book

Sensing Chicago
Noisemakers, Strikebreakers, and Muckrakers
ADAM MACK
“Spices up what too often can be stale conversations about Chicago history, culture, and literature.”
—Chicago Tribune

“An exemplary weaving together of sources. . . . A testament to the conjuring power of words.”
—Journal of Social History
184 pp. 6 x 9. 4 color photos, 4 b & w photos. 2015.
Paperback 978-0-252-08075-3. $25.00; E-book
Award of Superior Achievement, Illinois State Historical Society