

Contents

Introduction: The Stealth Pulse of Philosophy	xi
Avital Ronell
Translator's Note	xxiii
Blind Date . . .	1
Rendez-vous	3
Preliminaries	4
Two or Three Things We Know about Them . . .	5
Display	7
Touching	9
Excuses	10
Little Arrangements among Friends	11
Here One Does Not Learn	12
Gravity of Sex, Lightness of Philosophy	13
Body Moor Flesh Landscape Memory	14
On the Illusion of Being Immortal	16
Some Alibis for a Nonencounter	18
Alterations	20
Varieties of Intemperance	23
On Sex Kept Secret	26
Shame and the Question of Innocence	28
Foucault, Interpreter	30
Tinkering	32
Blinds	33
Jealousy 1: On Essence	34
Jealousy 2: The Instant of Grace	37
Jealousy 3: On Truth	42

Dionysian Life	45
Rhythms	47
On the Political: Sade in the Boudoir	48
The Practice of Insomnia	51
From Butterflies to Ideas	52
The Idea of Pleasure	54
Bluebeard's Seventh Chamber	55
March or Die . . .	58
A Metaphysical Eagle's Nest	59
All Lives—Or, on the Possible in Its Relation to Death	61
Pornographies	63
Animals and the World	64
On the Body, Once Again . . .	66
On Enchantment and Other Tombs . . .	67
“No One Knows What a Body Can Do”	71
Joinings	77
Sacrifice	79
Hungers	81
Private Lives	84
Letters from a.	85
Summer 1882: Nietzsche, Rée, Salomé	87
An Unavowable Community	97
Armed Vigilance	99
Blinds	100
Sade: A Summons	101
Mortal Condition (of Literature)	102
Literature, Ever Again . . .	103
No End	104
Notes	105
Name Index	111