

Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction 1

- 1 “Harlem Jazzing”: Claude McKay, Home to Harlem, and Jazz Internationalism 27
  - 2 “Black Man’s Verse”: The Black Chicago Renaissance and the Popular Front Jazz Poetics of Frank Marshall Davis 59
  - 3 “Do You Sing for a Living?": Ann Petry, The Street, and the Gender Politics of World War II Jazz 89
  - 4 “Cultural Exchange”: Cold War Jazz and the Political Aesthetics of Langston Hughes’s Long Poems 111
  - 5 “A Silent Beat in Between the Drums”: Bebop, Post-Bop, and the Black Beat Poetics of Bob Kaufman 131
- Conclusion “A New Kind of Music”: Paule Marshall,
The Fisher King, and the Dissonance of Diaspora 159

Notes 181

Works Cited 205

Index 221