

Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction 1

PART I: READING THE MARKS OF CAPITAL

- 1 “A little avenue to self-mastery”: The Social World of Working-Class Readers 17
- 2 “All sorts of wild, impassioned talk”: Open Forums and the Working-Class Public Sphere 39
- 3 “To see and hear things that have always been there”: Labor’s Pedagogy of the Organized 61

PART II: IMAGINING CRITICAL CONSCIOUSNESS

- 4 Brain Workers in the House of Labor: Life Stories and the Politics of Experience 91
 - 5 Icons of Ignorance and Enlightenment: The Visual Culture of Critical Consciousness 115
- Conclusion: Self-Education in the Shadow of the Cold War 143

Notes 153

Bibliography 185

Index 205