

Contents

Acknowledgments vii

Introduction 1

- 1 (Re)Presenting Racial Permeability, (Dis)Ability,
and Racial (Dis)Affiliations 31
- 2 Autochthonous Transfigurations of Race and Gender
in Twenty-First-Century Transnational Genocide Testimonial Narratives 76
- 3 Subjectivity in Motion: Caribbean Women's (Dis)Articulations of Being 107
- 4 Autochthonous Ambiguities: Travel, Memoir, and Transnational African Diasporic Subjects in (Post)colonial Contexts 150

Conclusion 187

Notes 197

Works Cited 213

Index 223